

ONE WORLD MEDIA FELLOWSHIP

Since 2001, One World Media has supported 184 emerging journalists and filmmakers to report from 72 developing countries. OWM provides each Fellow with a £1,000 grant, one-to-one mentoring, invaluable workshops and webinars by industry experts, and introductions to commissioners.

The Fellowship is aimed at aspiring journalists and filmmakers, who seek to make a career out of reporting the global south, raising awareness and breaking down prejudices.

We seek to champion diverse emerging talent, and particularly encourage submissions from BAME applicants, as well as people from and based in developing countries.

BEFORE APPLYING

We highly recommend that you participate in one of our International Reporting workshops, and make sure you have read our Fair Reporting guidelines.

- You can only propose one story per application.
- Your project should be in pre-production stage.
- All proposals must involve reporting from a developing country.
- We support non-fiction media across all platforms: film, print, audio, photojournalism, and multimedia.
